About the Dayton Philharmonic Junior Strings

Begun in the fall of 2014, the Dayton Philharmonic Junior String Orchestra was created in response to requests from string teachers and music educators for an orchestra to encourage young string students who are not quite ready for our Dayton Philharmonic Youth Strings.

Junior Strings presently has 40 students from 24 different schools and homeschools and is under the aegis of the Dayton Philharmonic Orchestra. Members of Dayton Philharmonic Junior Strings are selected through annual auditions open to all string students in grades 4–8.

About the Conductor

Kara Camfield is Assistant Principal Second Violin for the Dayton Philharmonic Orchestra and has performed with the Orchestra since 2006. She earned a Master of Music degree from the University of Cincinnati College-Conservatory of Music and a Bachelor of Arts degree in music from Minot State University in North Dakota. Kara also plays first violin as part of an educational string quartet for the Philharmonic.

In addition to performing, Kara is an adjunct professor of violin at the University of Dayton, plays in the Aviatori Piano Trio at UD, and teaches violin at the Piano Preparatory School in Beavercreek.

Be a Student's Inspiration

UCLA analysis of a U.S. Department of Education database tracking more than 25,000 students over ten years showed that students involved in music generally tested higher in reading proficiency exams and standardized tests than those who had no musical involvement. The study noted higher scores for musicians in all socioeconomic groups.

Your gift to the Dayton Philharmonic Junior Strings can help ensure that area children have this music advantage. Just $200 sponsors a youth in the orchestra for the entire year! To sponsor a student, make your gift online at www.daytonperformingarts.org/donate designated to the Dayton Philharmonic Junior Strings.

The Dayton Philharmonic Junior Strings and other orchestral education programs are made possible in part by the generous support of community members like you.
